

MORAL CONDITIONS OF GRAVEST CHARACTERMr. Justice Scott's Report Places Responsibility on Administration*SAYS BOOTH WAS IN COMPLETE ACCORD WITH POLICY OF TOLERATION, AND THAT MAYOR MUST HAVE KNOWN OF IT

Judge Does Not Believe Evidence of Wheeler and Chevrier, Who May Now Be Known as "Official Fixers"—Says Lancy, Sam Wright and Seymour "Must Have Had Some Direct Interest"—Other Police Officials Censured—Identity of "Big Mitt Joe" Not Decided, But Judge Refers to Alderman Clarke's Dealings With Women of Underworld.

WHAT JUDGE THINKS OF PRINCIPALS

Commissioner Booth: "I cannot avoid the conclusion that Commissioner Booth, up to about the time he wrote the letter of the 20th of May to Chief Lancy, was in complete accord with the policy pursued by the police force of permitting houses of prostitution to run so long as the neighbors did not complain about them, and of compelling them when such complaints were received, to move to some other locality in the city; and he has been instrumental in effecting nearly those in certain localities which have more than two prostitutes should not be allowed to remain, why should he not suggest to the closing of certain houses, or those in certain localities?" I cannot understand the reason why he should draw a distinction between houses which contain not more than two prostitutes, and those containing a greater number. The statutory definition of a common bawdy house, which is a synonymous term, being, "A house, room, set of rooms, or place of any kind kept for purposes of prostitution, or occupied or resorted to by one or more persons."

Mr. McNamee: "It may be open to question whether Commissioner Booth assumed that attitude upon his own responsibility, and without consulting the mayor or his other colleagues about it. He and the major discussed police matters from time to time, and in view of the fact that he looked upon the mayor as his 'boss,' and in view of the notorious increase of prostitution in the city, it is difficult to believe that the mayor was not aware of the attitude of the police in regard to it, although he may not have intended that they should go to the length to which Chief Constable Lancy understood that he was authorized to go."

Alderman Clarke: "Alderman Clarke, the chairman of the Committee of Safety and Health, who is the author of many statutes relating to the police department are perfectly willing that he know of the first of the adoption of the policy of toleration and approval of it as the least unsatisfactory way of dealing with prostitution. He admits that he was consulted by a woman named Billy Morton, with regard to a proposed lease of premises which he knew were intended by her to be used for that purpose and arranged for a lease with Nellie Rutherford, another prostitute, upon her arrest. Mrs. Bell gave evidence that when Chief Constable Lancy heard from her of Alderman Clarke's connection with the proposed lease, he told her that he would not be able to do anything about it, and that he would not interfere with the words of the witness, 'to keep his nose out of it.' Chief Constable Lancy denies that he had any such conversation with Mrs. Bell, but I think that Chief Lancy was not unnaturalistically disinclined to interfere where he thought Alderman Clarke was interested. Billy Morton's premises were apparently undisturbed for several weeks, notwithstanding Chief Constable Lancy's knowledge of their occupation and use. A man named 'Joe,' which is Alderman Clarke's Christian name, is said to have been mentioned by Wheeler and Seymour to the police for protection, and he is also said to have been mentioned in a statement of Blanche Hannon who was engaged for the payment of protection money. There is, however, nothing in the evidence which would justify even a suggestion that Alderman Clarke's conduct was open to suspicion in this connection."

Detective Coleman: "I have no doubt that Coleman, although particularly charged with the enforcement of the criminal law, recommended that it should not be set in motion. His conduct is open to serious criticism."

Detective Chief Samuel Wright: "Wright's evidence throughout the inquiry has been exceedingly unsatisfactory. He is not to be believed. The inference that the money paid to him by Mr. Gill, of the Pantages theatre, was not a loan, and that the money paid must have been by way of a bribe, is almost irresistable. Even if the evidence as to its being a loan were credible, the impropriety of a police officer requesting a loan under these circumstances constitutes the gravest possible misconduct."

Chief Lancy and Detective Seymour: "There was a general agreement in the office, in connection with the inquiry, that the police should first start on the morning of the 17th of May. It was carried out in such a way as to fall altogether on the officers. The officers who took part in it were given no proper instructions as to their duties. No attempt was made to arrest even the keepers, and there was a deliberate failure to even obtain the correct names of the persons who should have been charged as frequenters. Wheeler and Seymour say that the expedition to Chief Lancy's house was not successful, and that Chief Lancy was not consulted when the police came to search his house. This probabilities seem to be all that there was in the return of Wheeler and Seymour to the office. The officers, however, apparently without objection by Inspector Burbick, who was present, and whom as Seymour's superior officer, some blame should be attached, although Seymour was the man who was directed by Chief Lancy to make the raid.

Robert Williams: (alleged during the inquiry to have attempted to bribe P. T. Rutherford in connection with a charge against "Jew John.") "Williams, who had signed on with the making of the offer, failed to attend pursuant to his subpoena subsequent to Rutherford's evidence being taken. A bench warrant was issued for him, but he appears to have fled. As Rutherford's evidence was corroborated by the evidence of Higgins, the reason of his flight was no doubt the anticipation of a prosecution for perjury."

William Wheeler and Hector Chevrier: "There is a strong direct evidence that William Wheeler, the man in the Diamond Club, and Hector Chevrier, a partner in the Namey, Wine and Spirit company, have demanded money for police protection, and claimed to be authorized to furnish it. In the case of Wheeler, the evidence of Carmen Daly, corroborated as it is to a certain extent by that of May Smith, to the effect that he had demanded money from her for that purpose, is entitled to evidence against his denial. It is admitted that on a certain day he visited her house, as well as two other houses of prostitution, and asked for a loan, and that he was refused. On another occasion he again visited her house. She states that he then claimed (as he is shown to have claimed) on another occasion to one (or both) of others, that he was the 'official fixer,' and demanded from her $100 a month for protection, that he told her that he would call in a few days for an answer to his demand, that he did call a few days later but was not admitted and that on the following day she was arrested. In the case of Chevrier the evidence is to the effect that one Leroux, who was about to purchase a rooming house with the intention of selling liquor therein, was influenced by him that he would have to pay $100 a month for police protection, and that one P. T. Rutherford, who was in treaty for the purchase of a club premises was informed by Chevrier that in order to obtain protection he would have to buy his liquor from him. Chevrier denied that he made those statements, but I accept the evidence of Leroux and McNamee against his denial."

McNamee's prophecy made in Wheeler's office a few weeks ago that the police inquiry would not amount to anything, has not been fulfilled. As a matter of fact those who took an active part in the inquiry, and who led to the investigation and who later brought forward evidence in support of their claims, were instrumental in convincing Mr. Justice Scott of the truth of those statements, so much that he accepted them without any difficulty, and described the general conditions regarding the investigation as of "the most serious possible character."

A voluminous Report.

The report which was submitted to the court yesterday gave their sanction for 12 women teachers working in the country schools, and 12 women teachers working in the city schools, and 12 women teachers from Canada for 12 months, and 12 women teachers from the United States for 12 months, at salaries ranging from $110 to $145. The board of education, however, has not yet received any formal recognition as certified teachers during their year in London.

CANADIAN AND ENGLISH TEACHERS TO EXCHANGE

By Bulletin Leased Wire. EDMONTON, July 21.—The Canadian government has approved of the scheme for the interchange of women teachers for 12 months, and 12 men teachers from Canada for 12 months, and 12 women teachers from the United States for 12 months, at salaries ranging from $110 to $145. The board of education, however, has not yet received any formal recognition as certified teachers during their year in London.

ONTARIO PEOPLE ARE COMING WEST TO SEEK NEW HOMES

EDMONTON, July 21.—Seven hundred home-seekers left the Ontario station on the Canadian Pacific last night, en route to the west. The majority of men, women and children from Ontario hope who are going west seeking new homes.

SIR WILFRID TO VISIT WEST IN EARLY AUTUMN

By Bulletin Leased Wire. OTTAWA, July 21.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, leader of the opposition, will visit the west during the early autumn months. His itinerary has not yet been fixed and the date of his leave has not yet been determined, but it is anticipated that it will be about the middle of August. Sir Wilfrid will also visit many points in the eastern provinces and it has not yet been decided whether he will go west or east first. A number of the Liberal lieutenants will accompany the Liberal chief.

By Bulletin Leased Wire. VANCOUVER, July 21.—The Standard publishes this morning an important article in close touch with court news. The paper is greatly annoyed at the action of certain newspapermen in bringing his name into the column, and especially a statement that he will go to the home rule bill unless it was accepted by the government.

"On the contrary," says the statement, "this majority in conversation with me, has been careful never to discuss this question, and it is particularly unwarlike that I should be accused of having been instrumental in bringing his name into the column."

It is stated, however, that Sir Wilfrid will return to the home rule bill unless it was accepted by the government.

"On the contrary," says the statement, "this majority in conversation with me, has been careful never to discuss this question, and it is particularly unwarlike that I should be accused of having been instrumental in bringing his name into the column."

"He may be keenly alive to the danger of precipitating Ireland for armed conflict, and to the peril that his proposal to bring his name into the column on either side might precipitate a civil war or a civil war."

It was implied by the receipt of a petition seeking his personal freedom before his release since he has been lame and more or less helpless ever since he was born, and he has not been able to sign any other petition for any purpose he can think of."

"His memory was weakened by a desire to maintain peace in Ireland, and he has been unable to make any section of the press his ally, and it appears that he had any intention to interfere with the proper ministers or with the procedure of the home rule bill, and to exert his influence for or against it."

"His memory was weakened by a desire to maintain peace in Ireland, and he has been unable to make any section of the press his ally, and it appears that he had any intention to interfere with the proper ministers or with the procedure of the home rule bill, and to exert his influence for or against it."

"Outburst of Growing

This was an outburst of growing anger over the recent decision of the liberal papers today. To people familiar with the English conditions, it might have been urged the premier to go to the general election in October, 1911, preceding the general election, and to have the election delayed until October 22. This will accumulate during their absence, and will be followed by a general election.

Eczema Itched and Burned

Rash on Legs and Back, Scratching Irritated Breaking Out, Used Cuticura Ointment. Disease Vanished.

Kentville, N.S.—"For about six weeks I was bothered by a bright red rash which would appear most frequently on my legs and back. This troubled me most, for I was sure it was serious. The eczema itched and burned so much that I could not sleep at night. After it broke out I could not obtain relief, for each night it pained me so.

My legs and back were a solid mass of pain."

"I was given some salve and after using it for a few days I found that the rash became worse and I could not obtain any relief whatever. I used all the patent preparations available, but nothing relieved me from the suffering and affected me no relief whatever. About this time a friend recommended Cuticura Ointment. However, I had lost faith in all remedies and did not expect that I try Cuticura Ointment, but I did so.

"The first application gave relief and in about a week the rash disappeared. I continued to use the ointment for a few days, but upon getting a good night's rest, the first I had enjoyed for many months, I continued the treatment with Cuticura Ointment.

"At the time of the first application all signs of the disease had vanished."

WEDNESDAY, JULY 22, 1914

City council last night and circuit today.

A London newspaper wants Premier Borden and the Australian Premier named as a board of arbitration to decide the home rule question. The inclusion of Premier Borden is probably a bit of sarcasm. Sir Robert has taken a mouth to decide whether the Canadian immigration laws are to be administered by himself or by Gurdi Singh.

A consignment of material for the construction of light-houses has been sent up to Hudson Bay by the Marine Department. It is to hope for the safe of future navigation and navigation on the Bay, as well as the credit of Canada, that the shipment does not suffer from that of the day before yesterday two years ago when the channel at Port Nelson. Most of these were dumped on shore at Fort Churchill and left there. As a result of this and similar eccentricities of the Marine Department five out of seven vessels sent to the Bay last year with supplies were wrecked or had to return to Halifax without unloading cargo.

Commissioner McLean has been shifted again. What with trying to remember what he was last to keep in mind what he is at the moment, and to conjecture what they may call him next week, the "outside superintendent for the commission board" must find it hard enough to concentrate on his work, especially if he is promised details of their hours. Perhaps one of these days the commissioners will take a leaf from the Mikado and make him stand high everything else, but what they want to be themselves. That would save them considerable inventive effort and him a good deal of memory strain. Of course, what the "curious case" on the street would like to know is what is behind all this pushing and pulling.

Mrs. Murphy is diagnosing the ailments of the city hospitals, with a view to enabling the board to prescribe such remedies as seem most likely to induce the recovery of normal conditions. The subject is one with the details of which the public are not very familiar and in not position to deal. So far as they are concerned the results are not of great importance, and so long as the maximum in accommodation is ensured for the outlay they will provide the money necessary. But maintaining a staff of fifty people to look after about three dozen patients does seem rather like subjecting the sick folks to a superfluity of attention.

The chairman of the financial committee of the public school board responds to the proposal that the city council do the board's financing in a way that will probably end the discussion so far as the public are concerned.

He recalls that last year the board had to threaten legal action to get from the council the portion of the tax levy due to the school board. This action, however, did not bring about a New York situation, as the issue will not come into competition with municipal bonds offered in London. It is understandable too that the board should be averse to turning over its financing to the council at a time when the council seems to have rather more of that sort of business on hand than it knows how to deal with.

This is the open season for the fool who rocks the boat. He should be shot—overboard—or shot.

One hundred and twenty men are being returned to Edmonton from Ottawa. Whether because they are unemployed, or because employment is not available, the dispatch does not state. That this point needs explaining is an indication of the changed conditions in Canada. A couple of years ago if a man were deported there was no occasion to ask whether the fault was with him or with the "times."

One of these days, and I hope it is likely to happen, the over-loading of a motor boat on one of the lakes in this vicinity. On the occasion of a picnic at Cooking Lake some boats conveying people from the station to other parts of the lake were loaded obviously beyond the danger-line. The practice is not, of course, peculiar to this lake, but is more or less common. It should be stopped before the inevitable "happens."

Last week some more work was done toward the completion of the gates at the railway crossing on Nanaimo avenue—to wit, four of the seven levers which will be used to raise and lower the gates, if they are ever installed, were painted red. This week the other three may be painted. Perhaps an oily-tongued lawyer might be able to persuade the railway company that this sort of device, involving continuous construction, within the legal meaning of the term. It certainly does not indicate any reasonable alacrity in putting up the safeguards.

On Monday the Hindus and the immigration officers at Vancouver got down to details in the proposed debate as to whether the former would be satisfied. Hindus demands that the vessel be first provisioned for the return voyage, promising to then allow the crew to get up steam and proceed to sea. The immigration officers negated the proposal, shrewdly suspecting that if the ship's ladder were replenished the Hindus would hold the fort until overpowering and forcibly deport the crew to think the Hindus' promises are not any more durable than their much-proposed regard for law and constituted authority.

A few weeks ago the body of a man was found in a well near Wainwright. About the same time a justice of the peace was shot at Amisk. A few days ago a body bearing marks of violence was found in a river bed.

Some information concerning the reported murder at Lac La Biche. The perpetrators of none of these crimes have as yet been brought to justice. There are also six un punished murders, committed in various parts of the Province, which are still on the list from last year. This is a total of ten homicides, probably every one a murder committed within the last eighteen months, and for which no凶手 has been brought to book.

And the epidemic of killing seems to be growing rather than dying out. It is useless to expect it to disappear until it has been clearly established in the minds of potential slayers that to commit murder in this Province is to put one's neck in a noose. At present the criminally disposed are warranted in concluding from the history of the past year or so that they may kill with impunity rather than even that they will not be brought to punishment.

JASPER PARK
IS ALMOST READY FOR THE TOURIST

Jasper Park occupies the eastern side of the pass through the Rocky Mountains, bounded by the main line of the G.T.R. and C.N.R. on their way from the prairies to the Pacific. The park is under the direction of the parks department of the Federal Government. The administration is being made in the building of roads and trails, so that the tourist may have the maximum available to tourists. Jasper, a town of 1,000 inhabitants, is the administrative centre, and the residents of the capable park department.

There is a divisional point on the G.T.R., this being the place where there has a double importance.

The N.P.L. has its corresponding divisional point at Luceerne, seven miles west of Jasper.

To update the park department news: To Pyramid Lake, in rear of Jasper five miles, the bridge across the lake and Lake Louise and Lake Edith, on the opposite or east side of the Miette River, three and a half miles apart, have been completed. The bridge is 100 feet long and a half mile in all, besides three and a half miles of approach.

A bridge has been built across the Athabasca river, which has withheld the extraordinary high water of the summer, and a new bridge has been built out in the drift wood, so that the bridge is now suspended by wire cables which hold the bridge in place and by leaving a wider space for the current and driftwood makes the bridge more stable.

Pack trains have been cut to Callander, a distance of one and a half miles; on the west bank of the Athabasca upstream, 11 miles, and 14 miles downstream, on the east bank of the Athabasca, upstream from the bridge at Callander, a new bridge has been built at Maligine Canyon to Medicine Lake, upstream from the bridge at Callander, a distance of 14 miles; 24 miles; Jacob Lake to Rocky river, seven miles downstream, completed ten miles, and a new bridge has been built across the river at Interlaken station, on the G.T.R. The main trip from Jasper to Interlaken is 11 miles, and 14 miles downstream, over the Divide and down the Rocky to the south, and the bridge has been built at Maligine Canyon and is 14 miles upstream from the bridge at Callander.

The buildings are 20x25, of packed round logs and have shingled roofs.

The log houses are 12x16, with rooms by two petticoats. The centre room is 10x12, and the rooms at each end are for sleeping apartments.

Over 1,000 yards of trail have been made to the Punch bowl, 12 miles upstream, and to the Miette hot springs, 12 miles, has been built across the Stoney river, on the north or west bank of the Athabasca, upstream from the bridge at Callander, a distance of 11 miles, and a rough trail has been made across the south bank of the Athabasca, 10 miles to the mouth of Salmon Creek. The trail from Callander to the bridge continues up the Athabasca to the bridge at Maligine Canyon, 12 miles upstream, and with 14 miles of pack train road.

There are 12 miles of wagon road, 125 miles of pack trail and 14 miles of trail, and 14 miles in order to reach the various points of interest.

The buildings are 20x25, of packed round logs and have shingled roofs.

The pack train consists of 14 horses.

Horses are necessary, in order to reach the various points of interest.

The pack train has teams, saddle and pack horses, and pack drivers, and Field, D. Phillips and F. Stephens also have teams and riders, and for the pack train there are pack drivers.

A saddle horse costs $1.25 a day, and a pack horse $1.00 a day, for himself and horse, and a cook, 15 a day.

The town of Jasper is making good progress. The parks department has put in a fine system of paved and unpaved streets. The surface is heavily graded, and the paving is to be removed in the process of street making.

The buildings are 20x25, as bordering upon the streets from the sidewalk, and the houses are 12x16, and 14x16, and 15x15 in the neighbourhood.

Great Crowds at Buckingham Palace To Watch Progress of The Round-Table Conference

Eight Statesmen Representing Liberals, Nationalists, Unionists and Ulster, Attend Conference on Home Rule Summoned by King—Bitter Personal Enemies Meet—Nationalist Leader Expresses Greetings With Their Sovereign for First Time—King's Intervention Is Criticized

UNIONISTS ISSUE ORDER TO PREPARE FOR ELECTION

London, July 21.—While the leaders of the Liberals, Conservatives, Nationalists and Unionists were gathered at Buckingham Palace to discuss the question of finding a solution of the home rule problem, preparations were being made by the chief Unionist organizer for a general election. It was stated that the election would be held within three weeks of the conference, as the leaders are convinced that no matter what may be done in the conference, the time will come for a general election.

During the time conference sat around the table in Buckingham Palace, they touched on the question of the exclusion of the Conservative party from the government. When everybody recognizes that the most thorny one of the whole subject. The general impression prevailing is that the Conservative party will be excluded from the government, as the question of the exclusion of one country will be allowed by eight politicians.

For securing the ability of the conference that Parliament will accept my compromise going beyond the offers already made and refused, and if the House of Commons does not accept it, then we will have another election.

A Liberal caucus summoned, as one of the Liberals put it, to "kick up" the dust over the home rule bill, was held yesterday by the members of the House of Commons.

A resolution was passed to no effect that the members unanimously supported the bill as put forward by the Nationalists and embodied in the Irish home rule bill.

The meeting, further, was of the opinion that it was the duty of the Government to submit its whole program before making an appeal to the country.

London, July 21.—So deep is the interest throughout the British Isles in the progress of all classes in the crisis which has arisen over the home rule bill that great crowds gathered today outside Buckingham Palace to witness the arrival of the leaders who were to participate in the conference with King George. The crowd brought about a peaceful gathering.

The Right Hon. James, Labour speaker, had been invited by King George, who was chosen to preside over the conference, to speak at the opening. He was followed by the eight men who represent the various parties. Labour, Conservative, Unionist, Ulster, King George, with Baron Stanhope, and the chairman and shadow, cordially with all of them.

Edwardian Sovereign.

Probably this was the first time that John E. Redmond and John, Hon. J. H. Molstad, leader and exchanged greetings with their sovereigns. The two leaders had been in the Nationalist members of parliament to remain away from all functions which might interfere with the discussion of the amending bill.

The Daily News believes that it was likely he would be brought in contact with the King, as he is the only member of the Conservative and Liberal leaders who had not been invited to the round-table conference.

It adds that the Unionists, who were invited to the conference except on the condition of abstaining from the home rule bill, were not invited to the conference.

The government declined to accept when the King invited for the conference was put in the form of a communication.

King Strongly Criticized.

For the first time in his reign, King

George is criticized strongly, though respectfully, by some of the very important leaders. Mr. Lloyd George, chairman of the committee, said that if his colleagues had not been so anxious to have a conference on the home rule question he would have given them a more definite answer than he did.

The Manchester Guardian says: Any such transfer of the substance of the home rule bill to another bill, actually taken place, is of course to be regarded as a breach of trust.

The Daily News takes a stronger attitude, saying: "There are profound differences on the subject between those whose impatience at the obstacles put in the way of a general election is reaching the breaking point."

Democrats Intervene.

The Daily News, organ of the Labor unions under the leadership of David Lloyd George, chairman of the conference, and democratic leaders of British politics and are generally accepted as the most progressive.

Since personal feelings among political leaders of the British Isles run so high as at present, the atmosphere of the gathering could not have been more strained, according to reports and formal.

In a brief conversation King George withdrew from the meeting to allow Jenkins, the conferees to the to withdraw absent.

According to the Daily News, which represents the views of the Nationalists that respects the King's interference, from the home rule bill unless the amending bill is presented at the same time, the King's action is unconstitutional.

It adds that the King is entitled to a say in the affairs of the country so high as at present, the atmosphere of the gathering could not have been more strained, according to reports and formal.

The Daily News (Nationalists)

is of the opinion that the King's action in refusing to receive the amending bill will meet again tomorrow.

The Wise Plan.

Canadian Associated Press: The Unionists and the Radicals, with two or three exceptions, accept the cause of the King as on the whole, the best plan for settling the home rule question.

With which the Irish situation is fraught, though constitutionally the King's action is quite constitutional.

It adds that the King's action is a dearest feeling that the authority of parliament has been granted.

Irish Constitutional Issues Involved.

The Daily News believes that it was a constitutional issue involved in his majesty's invention. This method of settling the question is a safe and high-handed.

An innovation which the majority of parliament cannot possibly welcome to any member of the party.

The King's action is unconstitutional, as unconstitutional as any other act of the King.

The ministers, however, are also responsible. They ought to demand the amending bill, as the King's action is unconstitutional.

King's action for the conference was put in the form of a communication.

King Strongly Criticized.

For the first time in his reign, King

Premier Sifton Conferred with C.N.R. Officials

Says Railway Will Undertake Branch Line Construction Work This Fall

(From Evening Edition) Premier Sifton, who returned to the city yesterday evening after receiving the call yesterday in his office in the legislative building.

The premier, who had just ended his trip west to confer with the Canadian Northern and the Great Western railroads in connection with the construction of branch lines, yesterday held conversations with J. D. McCallum, manager of the Canadian Northern, Vancouver and the Alberta and Great Western railways.

McCallum gave the premier full information as to what lines would be built and when, and when branch lines would be inaugurated, the premier informed him of the International Socialist Convention to be held in Edmonton on Sept. 29th. This is the first year that the Socialists of Canada have decided to hold their annual international Congress, and Controller General of Railways, Sifton, took part in all parts of the Dominion.

Mr. Sifton was able to state that a forward movement had been agreed upon by the Canadian Northern, and that much work would be done this summer, probably more would be permitted. Further than that he would not go.

Alberta might look for a more than average crop this year, the people of the province were more concerned about the welfare of Alberta than about the amount to be about him.

Controler General of Railways, Sifton, who has been elected by the Canadian Northern and the Great Western railroads in connection with the construction of branch lines, yesterday held conversations with J. D. McCallum, manager of the Canadian Northern, Vancouver and the Alberta and Great Western railways.

McCallum gave the premier full information as to what lines would be built and when, and when branch lines would be inaugurated, the premier informed him of the International Socialist Convention to be held in Edmonton on Sept. 29th. This is the first year that the Socialists of Canada have decided to hold their annual international Congress, and Controller General of Railways, Sifton, took part in all parts of the Dominion.

Mr. Sifton was able to state that a forward movement had been agreed upon by the Canadian Northern, and that much work would be done this summer, probably more would be permitted. Further than that he would not go.

Alberta might look for a more than average crop this year, the people of the province were more concerned about the welfare of Alberta than about the amount to be about him.
